Proceedings of the workshop on ‘Standards for circular economy’

Workshop Title: “Good recycling practices and standards for the circular economy”

PARTICIPANTS

The workshop was attended by 214 registered participants. Some of them were from national, local and regional authorities, such as policy makers, ministries and organisations. A large percentage of participants in the workshop were also representatives of organisations whose activities are related to waste management, circular economy and sustainability. Finally, the workshop was attended by educational institutions (primary, secondary and tertiary) and representatives of civil society and non-profit organisations.

RESULTS

Participants submitted proposals for the utilization standards in recycling and in supporting the market for secondary raw materials. There were presented good practices in specific waste chains and flows, results from research and pilot projects and proposals for streamlining the regulatory framework of waste declassification and facilitating the wider implementation of good practices and standards.

Referring to industrial production, the primary objective that arose was to substitute natural non-sustainable, primary materials with secondary materials - recycled products in a legal and sustainable manner, in accordance with high European standards for the protection of life and the environment.
